

Journalist: What did your husband do when he came to the hospital?

Aalia: My husband claimed me because he was embarrassed in front of people.

Journalist: Does that mean the child was registered under your husband's name?

Aaliyah: Yes, and after four days of giving birth, I went to the civil registry, and they asked me to close the report, saying they would follow up later. Then we went to the "Saint Andrew" institution with the hospital documents.

Journalist: What is the fate of the report?

Aaliyah: Nothing. They asked my husband to register the child under his name, but he refused, considering the baby an illegitimate child."
