

Amina:

"What did the women do to be detained?! They don't care who is accused in the case and who is innocent! They arrested large numbers of people and detained them.

We had never seen officers before, and we had never been through anything like this; yet they (the police) took me and forced me to ride with them, even though I am not accused of anything!

When I looked out of the door, I found about twenty cars and armored vehicles outside. Then the officer came here, shoved the door open, and said to me, 'You come.'

They were even beating the children! They threw us into the police vehicle (the detention van) while they searched the house inside. They (the police) detain women to put pressure on the men and force them to turn themselves in."
